1. INTRODUCTION

Edwin Watchorn's military service extended over a period of more than thirty years from 1880 until 1913. His career encompassed the most dramatic changes in Tasmania's military history from the effective re-establishment of Tasmania's volunteer defence force in 1880, Tasmania's involvement in the Boer War, the formation of the Australian Army from the colonial forces after Federation to the preparations for what became World War One.

Watchorn's military career was a distinguished one. Enlisting in the Southern Tasmanian Volunteer Rifle Regiment in 1880 he was commissioned as Lieutenant in October 1881. An accomplished sportsman he was to represent Tasmania in many intercolonial rifle shooting competitions and in 1886 was one of two Tasmanians in the first Australian Rifle Team to compete at Wimbledon, Britain. The following year saw him win the annual Tasmanian defence force rifle championship for the third consecutive time and retain the gold prize medal.

In 1888, he was promoted to Captain in the Tasmanian Rifle Regiment and company commander. Nine years later in 1897 as Brevet Major he was appointed Commanding Officer of the 1st Battalion of the Tasmanian Rifle Regiment. At this time, he was also energetically involved in the establishment of the Southern Tasmanian Cadet Corps.

Two years later in 1899 he was promoted to the rank of Honorary Lieutenant Colonel. This was followed in 1901 by his appointment as Commanding Officer of the 2nd Tasmanian Imperial Bushmen. Composed of some 260 officers and men this was the largest single Tasmanian contingent to be sent to the Boer War. The contingent left Hobart in March 1901 and returned in June 1902.

During his service in South Africa Watchorn was mentioned in despatches and soon after his return the award of the Companion of the Order of the Bath was gazetted. In April 1903 he was formally invested into the Order by the Governor General, Lord Tennyson at a ceremony in Sydney.

The establishment of the Australian Army in 1903 saw Watchorn appointed as Major and Honorary Lieutenant Colonel (Australian Army) and Commanding Officer Derwent Infantry Regiment. This Regiment was to be central in the protests in Tasmania about the widely recognised inequality of pay for Tasmanian volunteers. These protests culminated in the almost complete boycott by members of the Regiment of the military parade and inspection by Major General Hutton and the Federal Minister for Defence on 6th February 1904.

Despite receiving widespread community sympathy for their actions, the immediate consequence was the effective disbandment of the Regiment.

Although Watchorn and a number of senior officers were present at the parade the next month they were placed on the unattached list effective from the 6th February.

Following Major General Hutton's resignation at the end of 1904 Watchorn was appointed Lieutenant Colonel and reappointed Commanding Officer of the Derwent Infantry Regiment from the 1st January 1906. A clear demonstration of confidence in him. In 1908 Watchorn was appointed Officer Commanding Hobart Defences a position he was to hold until his retirement on 1st April 1913.

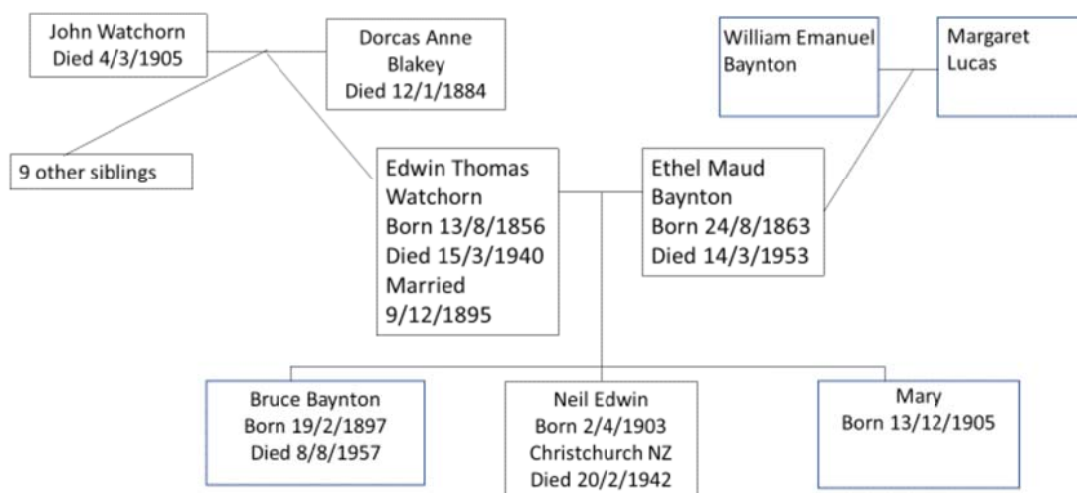

The following year was to see him appointed in September staff officer in charge of embarkation for the Tasmanian Military District.

Throughout Edwin Watchorn's military service with both the Tasmanian Defence Forces and the Australian Army he was to pursue a very successful commercial career with his family's company. Established by his father John Watchorn, the business passed to Edwin and his older brother in 1885 some three years after his father's election to the Legislative Council. His active involvement with the family business was to continue until only a few years before his death.

Even before enlisting in the Tasmanian Defence Force Watchorn was a member of the Southern Tasmanian Rifle Association. Throughout his military career he was to maintain a very active interest in the development of rifle clubs in Tasmania as an integral part of the state's defence capacity.

Edwin Watchorn died on 15th March 1940 and he received a funeral with full military honours. He was survived by his wife and three children. Both of his sons were to serve in the Australian Army.
